

Too often we get our performance mixed up with our identity. You ask people, "What type of work do you do?", and they may answer, "I am a marketing consultant" or "I am a doctor". But the truth is, that's what they do, not who they are. You are a child of the Most High God. That's where your value, your worth comes from - your who, not your do.

You may make mistakes, but that is not who you are. Nothing that you do changes your value, because your value comes from your Creator. So feel good about who you are. When you are positive toward yourself, you are in agreement with God. If you make a mistake, the moment you ask God to forgive you, He not only forgives you but He forgets it. Stop remembering what God has forgotten. Stop listening to all the accusing voices from the enemy telling you what you are not. Your performance isn't perfect, but you are accepted and approved through your faith. That is what matters to God.

Romans 4:23-24 "...Now this wonderful statement - that he was accepted and approved through his faith - wasn't just for Abraham's benefit. It was for us, too, assuring us that God will accept us in the same way He accepted Abraham..."
