

In the Scripture, Joseph was betrayed and sold into slavery by his own brothers, then falsely accused and put in prison. He could have used excuse after excuse to be bitter and angry, but he had a “no excuses” mentality. He kept doing the right thing, even when the wrong thing was happening. As a result, in the end he emerged vindicated, promoted, and in a place of influence and respect.

In the past people may have said things about you and done things to you that hurt you deeply and offended you. Don't waste your time looking back, nursing your wounds. Reliving what they did, thinking about what didn't work out are distractions. Let it go, and God will be your vindicator. Life is too short for you to waste another second in bitterness, remorse and self-pity. It's difficult to get over it and move forward, but here's the key: the pain of letting it go is less than the pain of holding on and missing out on the fullness of your pre-ordained destiny in Christ.

Leviticus 19:18 “...Don't seek vengeance. Don't bear a grudge; but love your neighbour as yourself, for I am Jehovah...”
