

Jericho was the last city that stood between the Israelites and the Promised Land. Its towering city walls were so wide that chariots rode on top of them. It looked impossible. God told Joshua to have them march around the wall for six days, and then on the seventh day on the seventh time around, they were to give a great shout of praise. It didn't make sense to them, but God was saying, "If you will praise Me while the wall is still standing, you will see things begin to change." They obeyed, and a miracle took place.

There is always a 'Jericho' that stands between you and your 'Promised Land' - one last obstacle that looks insurmountable. Will you trust God enough to praise Him in spite of negative circumstances? You are so close, but you don't see how you can get through it. Don't fear. Don't worry. Don't complain. Turn up your praise. Praise is what's going to bring the 'wall' down.

Joshua 6:5 "And when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, when you hear the sound of the trumpet, then all the people shall shout with a great shout, and the wall of the city will fall down flat..."
