

Who you spend your time with will have a great impact on what kind of life you live. There are people whom God ordained to come across your path to help you fulfill your pre-ordained destiny in Christ. The right people have already been lined up to assist you, inspire you, challenge you, and make you better. But if you are spending time with people who are dragging you down, causing you to compromise, and draining your energy, you are going to get stuck.

You can't spend time with chickens and expect to soar with eagles. You are going to become like the people with whom you continually associate. If your contacts and friends are people of excellence, kind, considerate, and generous, those qualities will rub off on you. But if your contacts and friends are negative, critical, unmotivated, and compromisers, this is your wake-up call. You are not going to become who you were created to be spending time with toxic people. Remember that believers and unbelievers are like oil and water - they don't mix. Life is too short to waste your valuable time with the wrong people.

Proverbs 13:20 "Walk with the wise and become wise; associate with fools and get in trouble."
