

When you have an attitude of faith - you are positive, hopeful, expecting good things - that pure eye is letting sunshine into your life. But when you go around stressed out, worried, or thinking the 'clouds' over your health or finances are never going to change, that is stopping the sun. It's causing more clouds to roll in, more defeat, and more mediocrity. You need to start letting some sunshine into your life. It doesn't start with God; it starts with you.

Instead of being discouraged by the dark clouds, your attitude should be: "God can change my situation at any moment. Healing is coming, promotion is coming, the right person is coming, breakthroughs are coming." If you want to see the clouds open up, you need to have this expectancy. Shake off the negativity, stop talking about what's not working out, and turn it around. Declare: "God, I know You are in control of these clouds. They will pass. I believe that at any moment I am going to see that unexpected sunshine."

Matthew 6:22 "If your eye is pure, there will be sunshine in your soul."