

It's easy to lose your passion for life. At one time you loved to laugh, looked forward to the day, were believing for your dreams, but when things didn't work out as you thought, you came into a dry place and life lost its flavour. You smile, but there is no joy behind it. Sometimes you are dry because you are worn out, the challenges have taken longer than you thought, and it seems you will never overcome them. You can be dry because somebody wronged you, and instead of letting it go, you have become bitter.

It is at times like this when you need to take control of your thought life. That is where the real 'battle' is taking place - the 'battlefield' of the mind. God sees what you are going through, and He is about to give you an abundance of strength, joy, health, and resources. You are coming out of that dry place into more than enough. So get your hopes up, and start expecting the abundant rain. That's the way our awesome God is!

Psalm 68:9 "You gave abundant showers, O God; You refreshed Your weary inheritance."
