

Imagine what you could become without the 'chains' that are limiting you. What could you accomplish without those chains of fear and insecurity? What kind of relationship could you have without those chains of guilt, shame, and feeling wrong about yourself? How high could you go without those chains of negative words that were spoken over you, telling you how you don't measure up and can never be successful? It is time to be freed from those chains. Your pre-ordained destiny in Christ is too great, your assignment too important to go around bound.

Stop telling yourself that you are stuck, you will always struggle, you will always be lonely, you will always fight depression. The chain-breaker, the Most High God, is working in your life right now. When you least expect it, things are going to shift in your favour. You are not going to be a slave to debt, fear, or an addiction. God is releasing you into increase, into favour, and into new levels. Ask Him to set you free, and start living from a freedom mind-set.

Psalm 116:16 "O LORD, I am Your servant; yes, I am Your servant, born into Your household; You have freed me from my chains."
