

Many believers think that they should worship God because of what it does for them. However, the truth is that what we receive are the byproducts of our worship; results which God ordains for our benefit, but they should never be the reason for our worship. We worship God for who He is - the eternal Creator, robed in light, crowned with glory, transcending the Universe, yet loving His Creation. God is greater than the sum of all He has created. We praise the three-in-one God for His inexpressible greatness, and His endless layers of infinite qualities. We worship and bow down before the Lord our Maker.

As we worship and magnify Him, our own souls and spirits are restored. Never confuse the byproducts with the reason. The reason is God, and God alone!

Psalm 95:6-7 "Oh come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker. For He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand."
