

When life throws you 'a curve ball', you need to have the right perspective when dark times linger. Remember, a bad break, a disappointment, a divorce, or a sickness cannot stop you. Keep hoping on in faith. God didn't crown you with favour and give you a royal robe so you would go around anchored to doubt, fear, and bitterness. Being hopeful is about your soul and spirit being anchored to the right thing. If you are not anchored to hope, you will become anchored to discouragement, and see everything with a tainted and negative perspective.

Many believers are anchored to bitterness. They are so focused on who hurt them and what wasn't fair, that bitterness has poisoned their whole lives. You can become anchored to self-pity and go around with a chip on your shoulder, always thinking about how unfair life has been to you. It will keep you from your destiny, so cut that heavy 'anchor' today.

Psalm 8:5 "You have crowned him with glory and honour."
