

Sarai had been childless for 90 years when God promised her that she and Abraham would have a son. He also changed her name to Sarah, which means “princess”. If anyone didn’t feel like a princess, or special, it would have been Sarah. She could have said: “I will never have a baby. Just call me Sarai. I am not a princess.” But when she accepted the name change, she was saying: “This seems impossible, but if God says I am a princess, then I’m getting in agreement with Him.” She started believing, which is when something came alive inside, and God brought the promise to pass.

Have you let circumstances in your health, finances, or a relationship tell you who you are? Have you let negative thoughts label you as a failure, not good enough or clever enough? God is changing your name to blessed, prosperous, healthy, forgiven, confident, royalty, a child of the Most High God. Now do your part, and keep calling yourself what God calls you, because you will become what you believe.

Genesis 17:15 “God also said to Abraham: “As for Sarai your wife, you are no longer to call her Sarai; her name will be Sarah.””
