

The overflow that God promises in Psalm 65 is not just to accomplish hopes and dreams, and go further, but you are going to see overflow in the difficult places of your life. Maybe you are receiving treatment for an illness, or raising a special needs child, or in a difficult workplace. That is not going to defeat you. You are going to overflow with strength, overflow with wisdom, overflow with health, and overflow with favour. Perhaps you are struggling with depression, fear, anxiety, and worry. That is not your destiny. You are about to overflow with joy, overflow with peace, and overflow with victory. You might have had a setback in your finances, and you don't see how you can get ahead. You are about to overflow with favour, overflow with good breaks, and overflow with opportunity.

In the difficult times, God has promised that you are going to overflow with abundance. You are not going to lack anything you need. There is going to be plenty of strength, plenty of healing, plenty of peace, and plenty of grace and mercy.

Psalm 65:11 "You crown the year with a bountiful harvest; even the hard pathways overflow with abundance."
