

When we face challenges to which we don't see an answer, the enemy will whisper: "What are you going to do?" With it comes the pressure to solve it, but when you are comfortable not knowing the answer, it takes the pressure off. If somebody says to you: "I heard about your problem. What are you going to do?", your answer should be: "I don't know, but I am at peace knowing the One who does, and He says to not worry about it."

If there is something about your health, your marriage / relationship, or your finances that you don't have an answer to, stop trying to work it out. Take the same time that you would normally spend worrying and wondering about it, and use it to thank God that He is working. Thank Him that He is making crooked places straight. Thank Him that all things are working for your good. God is going to not just bring promises to pass, not just turn problems around, but it is going to turn out better than you imagined.

Matthew 6:34 "So don't worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will bring its own worries. Today's trouble is enough for today."
